BIBLE SCHOOL LESSON Sunday, September 14, 1947 THE WISDOM OF HARMONIOUS LIVING (Cultivating Good Will)

Printed Text Prov. 3:30, 31; 15:1, 18; 22:24, 25; 25:18, 21, 22; 26:20, 20; Matt. 5:9; James 3:17.

Probably no subject receives so much consideration, in the day in which we live, or claims the attention of so many of our diplomats, as that of peace. There are from one to three or four meetings, or conferences in session all of the time. Yet we read daily of the imminence of another World War. What is the trouble? A few years ago, it was my privilege to hear Dr. Walter Wilson, speaking on this subject. He made this statement; "The whole trouble with world peace is the fact that we are trying to apply the wrong 'piece.' We are trying to substitute p-i-e-c-e for p-e-a-c-e. Every nation and individual is trying to get a piece of the other individual's, or the other nation's possessions or their trade." How right he was. There can be no good will, either among nations or individuals, who are envious of each other, and who are constantly scheming to appropriate something which belongs to the other, to their own use.

In the first verse of the printed text, we are commanded not to strive with another without cause. In other words, we are not to be the aggressors. Paul says, in Romans 12:18, "if it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men." It is not always possible to live peaceably with people. But it is possible to do so to touch a much greater extent than most folks would have us believe.

The next verse warns against being envious of oppressors. If we permit our thoughts to endorse evil, of any kind, it will probably not be long until we are practicing that same thing ourselves.

We are also reminded that "a soft answer turneth away wrath." Certainly we can easily see the wisdom of this. All of us have, no doubt, seen instances wherein some person was all primed to have satisfaction from someone else, even to physical conflict, if necessary, but when the other answered graciously and presented a logical reason for whatever had happened, the person was pacified.

In the portion of scripture taken from chapter 22, we are warned of the danger of friendships with persons who have uncontrolled tempers, lest we learn their ways. It matters little what sort of evil it may be, we are at first horrified by it, but as we look upon it from time to time it becomes less objectionable to us until finally we adopt that habit ourselves.

In chapter twenty-five, a false witness is likened to a maul, a sword, a sharp arrow. How like false words these instruments are. A maul is for striking a hard blow, a sword is for cutting and an arrow for piercing. Here again, we are reminded that these are evils and are not conducive of goodwill. Someone has said, "Wounds made by words are hard to heal."

In the next portion of this chapter, we are told how to overcome our enemies. If they hunger we are to feed them, and if they thirst give them drink. This is far from the natural response of man. But God has promised results. Nothing could make one feel smaller than to have another, against whom he had done some evil, return instead some generous favor.

The last scripture, from the Proverbs, admonishes against keeping some controversial subject irritated, by constant reference to it, to one of the persons concerned. Many times something has happened, which has stirred up ill feelings between persons. However, if the matter had been left alone, both would probably have forgotten it before too long. But some friend of one or the other, kept reminding them of the incident. This kept the controversy stirred up and the fires of hatred burning.

From Matt. 5:9, we have the next portion of the printed text, which is also our Golden Text. "Blessed are the peacemakers; for they shall be called the children of God." Only the children of God are capable of establishing peace. Paul tells us, in Ephesians 2:14, that "He is our peace." (Referring to Jesus Christ) What chance is there for peace at a conference where the Prince of Peace is barred, and where, for fear of offending some infidel diplomats, a prayer for the peace of the nations may not publicly offered?

The final scripture is taken from James 3:17. Here we are told that the wisdom from above is pure, peaceable, gentle and easy to be entreated. Peace and goodwill can come only when the conditions upon which they can flourish, have been established. First there must be a pure and unadulterated desire for peace. That desire must be strong enough to induce us to accept a just peace, rather than a peace just on our terms. The individual, or nation, who is peaceable is always approachable. Their ears are always open to hear the cause of another, no matter how insignificant that person, or nation may be.

Peace on earth goodwill to men was the proclamation at the first advent of the Prince of Peace. Only with the presence of Him, whose right it is to reign, will lasting peace come upon the earth.

LAST SUNDAY

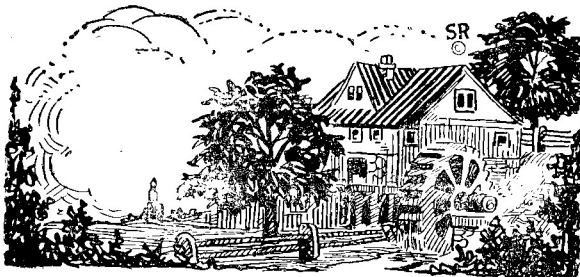

This paper would not be complete unless a record was made of the splendid services in our church last Sunday with Mrs. H. A. Dixon, Missionary from the Netherlands East Indies as guest speaker at both morning and evening services.

Those who love the Lord were filled with joy to know of His blessing in this work of Mr. and Mrs. Dixon among the head hunting wild men, women and children, the Dyaks of Borneo. We believe that through these services last Sunday many people of our church received an outlook on the work of a missionary that added to their knowledge and interest in these things as never before. Attendance at both morning and evening was out of the ordinary, the church being practically filled at each service.

While Mrs. Dixon is due to return to her mission field within a few weeks, we hope to have her with us again, and our prayers will be for God's continued blessing upon her work.

PRAYER MEETING

At 7:30 p.m. each Wednesday evening a most important service is held at Stow Community Church. It is the Prayer Meeting. If you are a Christian and want to grow in the Spiritual Graces attend regularly the Wednesday evening Bible Study and Prayer service. In some ways it is the most important service held in a church. There you will find those who are sincerely seeking the Lord. And those who sincerely seek the Lord will find Him. Consequently the Spirit of the Lord can often times be most easily contacted at the Wednesday evening meeting which thing is not always possible at other church gatherings.

At our church, attendance at Prayer Meeting the Minister characterizes as good. Yes, it is good but it could be better and even though sometimes it might be the BEST meeting ever held there is always the possibility of another meeting being even better than the best. Come out to the Prayer Service on Wednesday evening.

HOW IMPORTANT?

Yesterday a father came into my office at the beginning of school to enroll three children. They had their grade cards from last year and transfers from an Akron School dated September 5, showing that they had attended that school the three days of last week that school was in session. Now a transfer from an Akron school is not in itself unusual; we get dozens of these yellow slips every year. What was noteworthy about the matter was that these three children had attended an Akron school every day that it was in session, even the little beginner. How many parents would have said, "Oh, we're going to start them in the Falls school Monday. We'll not have them start here in Akron for just three days."

What a lesson these parents taught their children! How better could they have shown these children the high regard in which they held the public school? They didn't need to tell the teachers that they meant business. Their actions shouted their purposes. We shall look forward eagerly for a chance to have these children in our classes. They'll not be absent unless they are sick, I'll wager.

I've known children in my school who wouldn't average sixty days of school a semester for the eight years they were in the elementary school. I wonder if the fault in most of these cases did not rest with the parents. Did their actions show that they considered it very important that their children be in school every day they were well or were they like the aunt who came to my school one day to get an upper-grade girl and take her along to Cleveland for the ride? I remember how lightly she excused her actions by saying, "I guess she wouldn't miss anything 'very important' this afternoon." My own opinion is that if there isn't anything "very important" happening any afternoon in a school of six hundred, then it's high time to fire the faculty and get a new set of teachers. That lady might just as well have said to me and the girl, "Of course, this work you are doing here isn't of very much importance."

I ask you a serious question, parents and teachers. Do you think there is anything of much importance going on in the public schools? Or do you, like this girl's aunt, feel that a child wouldn't be missing much most any afternoon if she stayed out of school. We pay a lot for our public schools. We deserve to get a lot out of our investment. Maybe our children would get more out of their school work if we showed them by what we said and did that we considered school one of the priceless heritages of the present.

STOW CHURCH OF CHRIST

With many of our people out of town on vacation our attendance at morning worship last Sunday was 275. It is always good to see so many of our high school group in the church service.

Last Sunday afternoon and evening the young people of High School age met at Adell Durbin Park for fellowship, supper and evening vespers. There were nearly, fifty percent including some guests from other churches. The youth group in the Church of Christ is very active and is doing a fine work. The forty young people who attended a week of conference at Camp Grag and Bluffton College the past summer are putting into practice the truths they learned there.

The pastor's report for July and August listed among other items, seven funerals, six weddings and two baptisms. He was absent four Sundays during July and August, two weeks being spent at Bluffton College where he served on the faculty of the Youth Conferences and two weeks on vacation.

Morning worship each Sunday at 9:30. Bible School at 10:45. Christian Youth Fellowship at 7:00 p. m.
