THE WORLD'S NEED

Just what does this old world of ours need? Money? No there is plenty of money. Sounds strange doesn't it? However, it's a fact, there's money to burn. Need mighty armies to keep the peace? No. No. When you put uniforms on millions of men and guns in their hands then train them to fight, war with all its attending horrors is the outcome.

No, it's not soldiers, nor ships, nor submarines, nor air lines, nor high explosives, nor generals, nor captains, nor rapid transit, nor State patrols, nor automobiles, nor art, nor science, nor mighty cities, nor skilled men in every craft, nor great statesmen.

No, No. You can't guess what this foolish old world needs, needs more than anything else. I will tell you soon of our great and terrible need, and when I do you will shrug your shoulders, smile and throw the paper down, never-the-less my claim will stand, it cannot be gained, no argument can upset it. So what say you that this world needs? More people? No, No, that's not our trouble, hundreds of millions more or hundreds of millions less would make little difference.

Well, we need more pleasure, less work, economic security, a haven for the old folk and a clarified understanding among the Nations of the world?

All that, my friend, has been dreamed of, worked for, and fought for since time began. One generation has followed its predecessors to the grave. They lived, they perished, yet their dream has never come true.

Now I will tell you what this world needs. I will tell you of the only saving element of the human race, without it doom and despair will crush and destroy the race and we will all perish from the earth.

The world needs LOVE. Your home will not long endure without this one element, namely, love. Your town, or State, or Nation will buckle and perish without love. Without love you can't employ enough soldiers and sailors and police and officers with clubs and guns and threats to subdue and check the mob, the fiend in man, the spirit of hell that rises and breaks like a terrible storm and descends in unspeakable havoc and ruin on the heads of the Nations.

Only where love abounds is there peace and life and plenty and safety. Home may not have a rug on the floor, no music, only a bench or a box for a chair, an armful of straw for a bed, but if love abounds, yes, love, it's love over and above all else, that makes the home.

It makes the State, it makes the World. You may as well turn poison in the streams and bid us drink and live as to pour hatred into human hearts and expect to reap a harvest of great and good things.

God's love, parental love, the love of equity, the finer, nobler elements of love that can see good in all races of mankind. It's love that the employer needs, it's love that the employee needs. It's love not dole that the poor devil, who mills the streets, needs. It's love not prison, love not the hangman's rope. The world has exchanged an eye for an eye since time immemorial and now after six thousand years of history every land swarms with the criminal element, hate and discontent breed like fleas. The whole race seems headed for destruction.

So hear me, friend, there is one, only one, untried quality, that is LOVE. LOVE, yes LOVE alone will save the world.

Paul recognizes civil authorities as agents of the Living God. Since they deal in earthly things and exact tribute in material forms he views the moral obligation involved in handling the tribute as their responsibility and not that of the subject who is the payer. The virtue of being a law abiding, faithful subject is so much greater than the value of the sum involved which is given that it receives first place in his analysis. The obligation of the individual beyond the influence which he may exert in contacts, and by ballot in a Democracy, ends with the payment of tribute in its various forms and rests upon the executive or officer in charge. Forms of tribute Paul lists as dues, taxes, customs, fear and honor. He teaches reverence for law in all its forms. He points out that Christians need have no fear of the law. He pleads for reverence through respect and for conscience sake rather than through fear. The entire relationship he sums up in the great commandment, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

In the latter part of the lesson Paul makes this significant statement, "For now is our salvation nearer than when we believed." As pointed out in a previous lesson analysis Paul is very careful not to claim salvation as a completed consummation. First comes belief by faith and then growth by the grace of God to grasp the high prize of the calling of God which is eternal life. Christ said, "If ye love me keep my commandments." Paul says, "Put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make no provision for the flesh, to fulfill the lusts thereof." So we are brought to the conclusion of his analysis which is that the things that most of us concern ourselves about and strive for on this earth have no value when compared with eternal life in the great Kingdom of God. (Reference Romans 13:1-14).

INTERESTING THINGS ABOUT THE CHURCH AND COMMUNITY

There were 154 present at Sunday School, so the register indicated. Nearly 200 were present when the classes assembled in the auditorium, 190 present a year ago.

The fire marshall paid a visit to the Community Church one day last week. He found many things to complain about. Summing it all up I guess we need a new Church.

Wednesday, Oct. 21st, was a great day at Stow. The Ladies' Guild served dinner at the Church, about forty were present. Herbert Werner, candidate for Prosecuting Attorney, spoke briefly after lunch.

Down at the corners the band played, loud speakers screamed, the caravan conveying Attorney General John W. Bricker, candidate for Governor, and his party pulled in to the curb, where 500 people were assembled. Forty-five minutes were spent in speech making and introducing candidates. The party then rolled on to Tallmadge and Akron.

The Community News is still made up on red paper, quite a novelty this. We heard of a boarding-house where the boarders were served side pork all winter. My heavens, one of the boarders exclaimed, did these hogs have nothing but sides.

The Ladies' Guild have agreed to put across the troublesome problem of getting subscriptions for the Church News. They agree to cover the field like so many bees the first week in November. Save fifty cents, be a good sport, help out this weekly in the mail. Many thanks.

Mrs. Judy, leader of the choir, wants the impression corrected, that the choir is only for the ladies. So come along all good and true men that can sing. Come balance the choir.

Mrs. Hulme and her sister, Mrs. Highfield, who is a visitor here from Oklahoma, sang two very much appreciated duets at the Sunday Morning service. Some expressed the desire that Mrs. Highfield should move to Stow. The congregation was instilling in their expression of gratitude.

This Community Church News is desirous of serving every family in Stow, regardless of religious preferences. We will therefore welcome news and announcements from The Church of Christ, our neighbor and sister Church. Come along, friends, appoint your scribe. You are welcome to space in the Community Church News every week.

The minister spoke Sunday morning on John 11:23. The master is come and calls for you.

DWIGHT SCHRODER

Friday Oct. 30. About ten o'clock last evening while riding home on his bicycle, Dwight Schroder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Schroder, Banmberger Road was struck by an automobile. He died twentyfive minutes later at St. Thomas Hospital. Our sincere sympathy goes out to the entire family.

We shall miss Dwight. He was a member of Community Church. He played in our Orchestra and for over a year he faithfully delivered many copies of the Community Church News in Paradise Park and other places.
