

GRAY'S EASTER MIRACLE

by Peg Knight

"A miracle I'd never have believed if I hadn't seen it with my own eyes." That's what Pat Gray says about the recovery of her husband, Bud (Earl), from a recent illness that the doctors warned her would result in his death.

Easter has a powerful message for the Grays this year. They are filled with humility and wonder that they are still together, and that he is not only alive, but perfectly well.

A few weeks ago, Bud, an electrician, was working at ground level near a ladder where a carpenter was hammering above his head. The heavy hammer slipped from the carpenter's hand, landing on Bud's head with terrific impact.

"I saw stars for an hour," Bud says.

Severe headaches for a week resulted, but otherwise Bud felt all right, and was sure they'd wear off. The second week, he began to lose his equilibrium. He easily lost his balance, and his hands began to shake so that he could hardly hold a cup to drink coffee from. Finally, he made an appointment to see a doctor.

But the day of the appointment, an emergency call came for him to do a special job at South Arlington Methodist Church, so he cancelled the appointment and went to work.

Bud's friend, contractor Bill Kaufman, stopped in to see how he was coming along. He found Bud unconscious, seemingly strangling, as though he had had an attack. Kaufman said if he'd come a few moments later, Bud might have died right then.

Kaufman rushed Bud to the hospital, where it was considered he must have a blood clot on the brain from the hammer blow. Pat was called from her job at James Hardware. An emergency operation was set for 8 p.m. If a report from the hospital lab had been delayed another minute, the operation would have been performed. But the report showed no blood clot. Rather, it showed an infection of the brain - an operation would have been useless, and could have had unnecessary consequences. Bud had encephalitis.

Pat was told what a terrible disease her husband had. She was warned that recovery was rare, and that inevitably, if patients did recover from it, they were left with brain damage. Bud might, if he lived, be mentally unbalanced. He might have St. Vitus dance. He might be blind or paralyzed, but he very likely would not live.

Bud's temperature shot up to 106. And stayed there. His face became unrecognizably swollen and fiery red. His breathing was noisy and very rapid. His pulse was too fast to count. He was still unconscious - in a very deep coma.

Heavy doses of antibiotics were administered, with no results. Ice baths were tried. Doctors pricked him with pins, pretended to be going to hit him in the face, pushed and pulled him to find some reaction, but got absolutely none. His temperature stayed at 106. On the end of the second day, they told Pat they had done everything they knew how to do, and "it was just a matter of time."

Bud's parents and brother and Pat haunted his bedside. They prayed, as they waited for the expected end.

Then Bud's mother said to Pat, "Pat, you know, Bud's never been baptised."

Pat hadn't known. She'd taken for granted that he had been. It was late at night, but with the doctor's words still in her ears, that he probably wouldn't last out the night, she thought it didn't matter what time it was.

She called the minister.

At 1 a.m. the minister of the Stow church Pat and Bud and their two children attend, asked a nurse for a small container of water. He said the Lord's Prayer over Bud's bed and performed a simple baptism ceremony. Then, having done all he could, he left.

"He didn't have time to have left the hospital," Pat said, "before I could see a change in Bud. The swelling in his face started to subside. The redness started to fade. He gradually stopped that terrible panting. Before a half hour had passed, he looked normal. He was facing his mother, on the opposite side of the bed from where I was standing. Suddenly he opened his eyes and quietly said 'Hi, Mama.'"

"There was no evident way he could know that his father and brother was there, or that I was there, but he spoke to all of us without turning his head." His temperature was normal by morning.

Bud, a few short weeks ago given up as dying, has since been pronounced in perfect health, with not one sign of his terrible illness. Seven doctors have seen him and marveled. They advise him not to work for another couple of weeks, but to rest from his ordeal, but say "This man has no effects whatever." His own physician, when checking him, said "It's impossible for you to be here. But here you are!"

Bud feels a renewed faith in the goodness of God, and a deeply sincere gratitude for life. He wishes he could tell the whole world how he feels, wants to thank everyone who wished him well during the illness, everyone who prayed for his recovery - he knows many people who are strangers to him were praying for him - and completely credits his present well-being to their prayers and his baptism.

"It's a miracle," Pat repeats. "I don't blame you if you don't believe it, because I don't think I would if I hadn't seen it with my own eyes."

Snowball Celebrates 1st Birthday

My First Year, an autobiography
by Snowball Martin

Snowball sits sedately, waiting for carrot treat to celebrate birthday and Easter, preferring vegetables to sweets at this holiday time.

Have you ever wished a bunny rabbit a Happy Birthday? My name is Snowball, and I'll have my first birthday on April 24. That's the day, last year, that I came to Stow from the Falls Pet Shop.

I was a specially requested birthday gift for a boy who was 11 years old on that day. I made friends easily and soon became a part of the family.

All last spring and summer I spent carefree days hopping round the neighborhood enjoying grass and dandelions. I developed a very bad habit of crawling under neighbors' cars - it was so cool and I was so comfortable stretched out on garage floors.

But that habit didn't last. Guess someone was afraid I'd be run over by a car, so a screened pen was built and my free wanderings were at an end. I didn't really mind the pen as long as the carrots were long, crisp and plentiful. I was a happy rabbit.

When fall and winter came, even though I have a thick white fur coat, I felt lonely and cold in the garage. I was so glad when the family decided to bring me into the house and make a place for me in the basement.

Now, in the house I had something nice to look forward to. Every morning my little "Mistress Mary" would carry me upstairs to the kitchen where I'd be placed on a chair while she would open a big white door. Oh, the treats she'd give me! Delicious crispy lettuce and shiny carrots - sometimes even toast from the breakfast table. I always stay on the chair and gobble my treats.

Now I know where those special goodies are kept, and when I'm free, I hop straight to that big white door and wait for some.

All winter long I've had a soft, easy life. I know that my name is Snowball for when anyone calls me that, I come hopping.

Everyone is talking about springtime and Easter these days. I hope spring is really here at last, and is Easter this next Sunday?

If there are any youngsters around Stow who really think bunnies have anything to do with

Town Types - The Village Doctor

by Frank Green

James Smith Sweeney

The country physician's story has been often told. I question whether any town has ever had a more colorful type than Stow's Dr. Sweeney. His daughter, Dolly (Mrs. Byron Longcoy) who was herself plenty interesting, gave me her father's story.

It starts back in County Antrim, North Ireland, where St. Patrick started his missionary work.

Dr. Sweeney's father was born there Aug. 14, 1828. His father's people were rebels against British tyranny, working actively for Irish freedom. Their property was confiscated, and Dr.'s father, a boy not yet 16, was drafted into the British army.

When the War of 1812 began, this slender, blue-eyed Irish boy was shipped to America to fight against the colonies.

He and Dr. Sweeney's mother's father both fought, on opposite sides in the battle of Plattsburg. The British army went into winter camp in Canada. When the drillmaster struck the raw recruit a hard blow on the legs, this quick-tempered youngster slapped him hard in the face.

Some of his friendly comrades got him out of the guardhouse and put him on a horse. He crossed Lake Erie on the ice.

After the war, he married Dolly

Brown, the granddaughter of Governor Huntington, third governor of Ohio.

He became a successful physician. His son, J. S. Sweeney was born in Middlefield, O. He, too, studied medicine.

Dr. Sweeney, Sr., had a private tutor for his sons, who not only learned reading, writing and arithmetic, but also fencing. Mrs. Longcoy doesn't say where her father started his practice, but the Court House record shows he bought, in April, 1863, 14½ acres out of the SW corner of lot 35, Stow Township.

The tavern buildings were on this lot, about where the Spaght block and Children's Chapel now stand.

Our Dr. Sweeney was then 35 years old, tall, active, muscular man. His daughter says he ran the tavern for some time. She also says that he kept order there. She says her father was a natural fighter. She tells picturesquely of the fights he quelled by throwing the participants out in the road by the nape of their necks and seats of their pants as unconsciously as throwing a setting hen from her nest, saying, "Come on, come on, if any of the rest of you want a part!"

(CONT'D NEXT WEEK)

The Stow Daughters of America Council will meet at the Stow Town Hall, Monday, April 18, at 7:30. A social hour will follow the business meeting.

CENSUS TAKERS ARE BUSY WITH COUNT

Come Mud and Flat Tires —
Nothing Stops the Census Taker!

Highly trained census enumerators, 15 women and 1 man, began the tedious house-to-house canvass of The Stow, Silver Lake and Monroe Falls Areas, April 1.

Under the guidance of the specially trained crew leader, Mrs. Henry Fritsch, 3580 Darrow Rd., these fifteen women and one man, John Moss, 2044 Samira Rd., refuse to let muddy back roads or flat tires defeat this all-out effort to count noses.

After extensive tests were given at the Census Bureau in Akron, which included interpretive reading, map reading and vocabulary, out of nearly 3000 persons taking the test, 550 were assigned to Summit County, under 28 group leaders.

Thanks to the persons who had their advance report ready when their homes were visited, many calls required less than 10 minutes. About 90% of homes visited are prepared to aid the caller by presenting this report completely filled out.

"Local residents are friendly and courteous," stated Mrs. Fritsch. "Many have offered coffee, cake, nut bread, and in general have opened their homes and have been most cooperative."

"The muddy roads, flat tires, and a few unfriendly dogs have presented minor obstacles, but the job must be completed on or near April 13."

Each census-taker cannot have more than 500 homes to visit, which means a certain speed in covering these homes must be maintained. Every fourth home receives a special, longer form which is to be filled out privately and mailed directly to the Census Bureau.

Delbert E. Morris, 2986 E. Graham Rd., came to the aid of Mrs. Fritsch when her car developed a flat tire during the supper hour in front of his home on April 6. He completely changed the tire for her.

Working in Silver Lake are Mrs. Donald Cully and Mrs. E. Z. Drummond.

Munroe Falls workers are Mrs. R. A. Walker, Mrs. Edgar Howe, Mrs. Harvey Chaney, Mrs. Frank Likar, and Mrs. R. E. Gaylord.

Stow workers are Mrs. Ray V. Brandon, Mrs. William F. Hall, Mrs. Fred Werner, Mrs. Sam Nicholls, Mrs. J. R. Anderson, Jr., and Mrs. Glenn K. Barron.

WHERE YOU ARE

You who think "somewhere" is different
And the grass might greener be
If the stakes were pulled and shifted
Have my deepest sympathy.
You could change a bit of scenery,
You might travel near or far,
But you have yourself to live with
And your thoughts are where you are.

Community Spirit Is Not Dead

Everyone was snowed in, schools were closed. Mrs. V. D. Rearick, 3698 Elm Rd., decided to shovel her driveway. Daughter Nancy offered assistance. Nancy's boy friend came over, shovel in hand, to help, and was welcomed to the crew. Soon Grandpa Rearick joined in to help.

Robert Haas, across the street, kiddingly called out an invitation for the crew to clear his driveway, then disappeared to the rear of his home to clear a path to his dog house. The willing shovelers went over and quietly cleared his driveway before he returned to do the job.

By this time, this ambitious group couldn't stop shoveling snow - they were having too much fun. So they all proceeded to clear the C. V. Williams driveway at 3699 Elm.

Along came a Stow police cruiser. Seeing the happy group, officers stopped to chat a moment when a bread truck ventured up the road. He became stuck in the ditch, so there was another challenge.

SUMMER PROGRAM

Working one season ahead, Stow Community Council is already planning the Summer Recreation Program for children. This will be the fourth year the council has sponsored such a program. Last year a total attendance figure of 2,250 was tallied. (This is not a total of children attending, but takes in many of the same children in most cases, week after week.) As high as 105 in one day attended sessions.

Drawing upon funds furnished by United Fund's Committee for Suburban Recreation and Welfare, Chairman David Reid states he is in a position to employ a supervisor for the program, and is now ready to take applications. Last year's supervisor is unable to return, but her assistant will be back this year.

Qualifications for the job include some recreational experience, and a car. Applicant should be over 20 years old, have had Applicants should be over 20 years old, have had some recreational experience, and have a car.

The program lasts for 10 weeks, beginning approximately one week after school closes. Five days a week, two at Adell Durbin Park, one at Highland School, and two at Woodland School, beginning at 12:30 and lasting till 4:30, encompass the full program.

Crafts and sports, games and a variety of other activities are included for girls and boys of school age.

Only children excluded are boys who are in Stow Boys' Baseball League, also sponsored by Community Council. The feeling is that those boys already have an activity provided directly for them, and the playground program is not large enough to accommodate everybody.

Reid states he will welcome any suggestions or criticisms for bettering the program. He's long been looking for a way or place to establish a target range for older boys, but has been unable to find a suitable site. Anyone have a vacant hillside he's not using?

Questions, comments, applications or hillside-owners may contact Reid at OV 8-4597, or write him at 3943 Darrow Rd.

LARGES CELEBRATE THIRTY-FOURTH

Luckily for him he had a good singing voice, or Bill Large might have had to think up another scheme for being near the girl he'd decided to marry!

Violet was singing in the church choir, so Bill figured joining the choir was a good move. They sang in church choirs together after that for almost 30 years.

Memories like this come surging back when "Vi" and Bill Large speak of their 34th wedding anniversary April 10th. Celebration is planned for a later date, when they'll dine out together. Meanwhile, both of them say they'd do the same thing all over again if they had the chance!

Stow residents since 1934, Larges have one son, Phil, who is patrolman with Stow Police, and two grandsons. Vi says since Phil didn't carry on with music, she's delighted that his son Larry is taking drum lessons.

"Music has always been so important to me," she says. "I'm glad someone in the family is carrying on the interest."

Bill was in construction business 18 years in Stow, now owns and operates the Stow Fix-It Shop in the Holt Bldg., where practically anything from manicure scissors to dresser drawers gets overhauled. Vi keeps shop for him part of the time; thus they both keep up with long-time and new friends here.

Both members of Stow's First Christian Church, he a past president of Stow Businessmens Club, and she formerly a professional singer locally, Vi and Bill Large are wished many more long and happy years together by all of Stow!

Mrs. L. T. McLaughlin of W. Kent Rd., has returned from Florida. She flew down to meet her sister and brother-in-law; they toured the state for three weeks, then drove back in two days.

Airman 3rd Class Stevan R. Berman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Berman, 3448 Wilson Ave., is home on a 15 day furlough after finishing basic training at Lakeland Air Force Base, Texas. Returning to duty he will be stationed at Wright-Patterson Field, Dayton, Ohio, in medics.

Ross Holden, Sr., 1696 West Arndale, has been confined at Robinson Memorial Hospital, Ravenna, Ohio, for 2 weeks. Mr. Holden is in traction for complications to his left arm, resulting from a seige of pneumonia.

Mrs. Mabel Mangold, 83 years of age, who resides at 3748 Iona Avenue, is confined in St. Thomas Hospital with illness.

Mr. and Mrs. William Large

Mrs. Richard Addison, 3748 Iona Avenue, had a fall in her kitchen at her residence, April 8, which required stitches to repair a 4 inch skull wound, treated by Dr. Lloyd Couchman.

Stork Club

March 17 was the day Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Mononey, 4679 Markwood Dr., welcomed their fourth child. A girl, Patricia Gall, weighed 7 pounds, 15 ounces, on arrival at St. Thomas Hospital. A brother, 8, and two sisters, 5 and 2 greeted the new arrival.

A third son joined the Robt. F. Griffith family, 1788 Gorge Park Drive, in March. His name is Timothy.

Mrs. Harold Porter, 101 Harry Avenue, will play hostess to members of the Junior North River Club, Friday, April 15, at 8:30.

Members of the Methodist Youth Fellowship are taking orders for Easter plants, to be delivered to your home or at the church Easter Sunday. Anyone wishing to place an order, call Cheeri Pick, OV 8-5569.

Mr. and Mrs. William Miller, now of Marion, O., were recent visitors at the home of the Roland Tickhills.

Have you counted the number of canned meat items in your favorite food store recently? If not, you'll probably be amazed at both the number and the variety available. In one store, 135 different packs - brands, sizes, types - were counted. Canned meats and meat products are convenience items - entirely cooked, boned, seasoned, and ready-to-serve or heat and serve.

Canned meats and other canned foods gain in flavor and our families benefit by better acceptance where we exert our culinary creativity and put our personal mark on the product. We're not "pushing" corned beef hash but by giving you a variety of ways to change this one product we only show how you can use your own imagination and better use other canned foods through variations.

CORNEB-BEEF-HASH RING

2 cans (1-lb size) corned-beef hash	2 tablespoons butter or margarine
8 eggs	1 tablespoon finely chopped watercress or parsley
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper

Start oven at 350°F., or moderate, and grease a 5-½ cup ring mold. Pack corned-beef hash into mold, and bake 30 minutes. Just before end of baking time, beat eggs in a bowl with salt and pepper. Melt butter or margarine in a medium skillet, and add eggs. Cook, stirring, over medium heat until eggs are set. Unmold hash ring onto serving dish, and fill center with eggs.

Sprinkle with chopped watercress or parsley, and serve to 6.

HASH WITH CHEESE TOPPING

1-½ cups canned corned-beef hash
3 tablespoons prepared mustard
1 tablespoon prepared horseradish
6 slices bread
6 large pitted ripe olives
1 medium yellow onion
6 thin slices Muenster or Swiss cheese

Start oven at 425°F., or hot. Thoroughly mix corned-beef hash, mustard, and horseradish. Cut crusts from bread slices, and spread bread with hash mixture. Chop olives and onion fine, and sprinkle over hash. Top each bread slice with a slice of cheese, and bake on a cookie sheet 10 minutes, or until cheese melts. Serves 6.

Terry Talks of High

by Terry McIntyre

I imagine the Future Teachers (FTA's) can picture themselves in the shoes of Miss Kraus or Mr. Carpenter, who are student-teaching at Stow.

Miss Kraus will graduate from Kent State University in June. She is majoring in English and minoring in speech, and doing her practice teaching under Mrs. Kaufman.

Mr. Carpenter, an alumni of Stow, is also attending Kent State. He is majoring in social studies and will graduate in August. Mr. Carpenter chose Stow because as a student he enjoyed Miss Workman's classes and now wished to do his practice teaching under her.

Friday's Dance

The Hawaiian Hop, which was last Friday, seemed to be a big success. A group of boys came wearing some of Lowell Reed's colorful Hawaiian shirts. The gym was decorated with palm trees, flowers and fish nets. A false ceiling represented colorful sunset.

Aloha

This is my "farewell" column. I have enjoyed the experience of writing for this growing newspaper, and I wish to thank you for the many favorable comments I have received. My senior activities, with graduation rapidly approaching, and my outside work, are demanding too much of my time.

Eventually, I hope you will again be reading my articles as I plan to take journalism along with my training for secondary education.

I have found a wonderful replacement - her name is Terry Moore. She is a busy junior and I am sure you will be delighted with her work.

(Ed. Note: Farewell, Terry - any time you have a story for us, you know we'll be glad to print it. Good luck in all your activities!)

STOW SPORTS

by Ray Kincaid

Track

Track season got off to a good start for Stow High as they defeated Twinsburg in their first meet.

Standout was big Martin Brandon as he broke school records in the discus throw and shotput.

Baseball at Stow High

Going to press before opening of baseball season, but plans for the team as follows: Westgate, P and 1B; Sandercox, P; McClellan, OF; Cocozzo, OF; Wilkerson, 1B; Klesa, C; Ingalls, 3B or SS; Nichols, 2B; Gray, SS or 2B; Moore, P.

Class A Ball

Stow may also have a Class A baseball team entered in the Portage County League. H. S. VonGuten and Dale McClellan are trying to find the necessary sponsors.

To sponsor the team would run $706.20; however the players are contributing $200 of this, and the balance could be divided 16 ways, which would be $31.60 per player.

The team could be called the Stow Merchants, and each of the players would have an individual sponsor with his name on the jersey.

An alternate budget, calling for less complete uniforms, would amount to $27.88 per player.

Any potential sponsor who cannot reach VonGuten or McClellan may contact me through The Stow Press.

Council Topics

At the regular meeting of Munroe Falls Village Council, Council approved the temporary appointment of William Younkin, 135 Luden Avenue, as a deputy marshal.

Ten parcels of land within the Village limits are to be rezoned and four new ordinances have been written governing the residential and industrial districts. The code to the present time read that an R-1 70 foot lot with 10,500 square feet, where there are sanitary sewers is permissible. To that has been added a 80 foot lot, with 12,000 square feet, where there are no sanitary sewers. On the R-2 code there will be a 90 foot lot with 13,500 square feet with public water and sewers, and a 100 foot lot, with 20,000 square feet, where there are no sanitary sewers.

E. J. Spriggle, Building Inspector reported 6 heating permits, and 11 electrical permits, for the month of March, total $115.50

Road Supt. Richard Miller reported that all roads in the Village are passable and that the most trouble had been on Carmia, Highland, Belmont and Lindsey Roads.

Council authorized the purchasing of burglary insurance on the Village garage, and fire insurance on the shelterhouse, at Guise Park.

Three properties owned by N. H. Guise, Harry Olson, and John Renner, are under consideration on the new R-2 code.

After the Council meeting members of the Safety Committee and Mayor Lyle considered applications submitted up to the present time for a full-time police chief. It was decided, with report given by Safety Chairman, George Scott, to extend the deadline for applicants, until May 1. Applications will be welcome from non-residents, as well as those living within the Village. Applicants must pass a physical examination, have at least a high school education, and be capable of leadership ability. Starting salary will be from $4,000 to $5,000, depending on the applicant's qualifications. Applicants may be secured from Village Clerk, Virginia L. Dove, week-days, at the Village Hall, from 8:30 till 4:30.

Easter, they must be very small youngsters - too small to know the true, glorious meaning of Easter as the biggest boys and girls understand it.

But don't get me wrong - we do love to be called "Easter Bunnies." It makes us feel really important, and I'll be most happy to extend special Easter Greetings to all kiddies in Stow. I hope your baskets are filled with carrots - oh! I mean eggs, and sweet treats.

I'll take the carrots, thank you!
