

LIKE NO PLACE

The restless haunting tune
From ceaseless moving vans
Sings, 'leave the old, seek the new.'
A ballad sung by Americans.
When they visit back and forth,
Two places become dear,
If they are here, home is there,
When they are there, home is here.

Gracious Sakes

Mr. Harold Mathews has a cottage on Kelly's island. He wanted to rent it, so he placed an advertisement in the Stow Press classified section. The paper, with his ad, appeared on a Thursday. That same day he received six telephone calls inquiring about the cottage. Of the six calls, he has rented the cottage a week at a time, three times. Two parties are still waiting to have their week at Kelly's Island.

The moral of this story - our classified ad gets results.

SIGHTS IN STOW ON FOURTH

The Fourth is over but the memory lingers on...of the sirens and the drums...the flags and the uniforms...balloons and streamers and flower-decked cars...a neighboring band when our own was unavailable...smart stepping horses and proud old autos with their almost forgotten horns ('ahyoo-gah', said one, 'beep-beep', another answered)...popcorn and hotdogs and ice cream and cotton candy...a gorgeous blue-skied day perfect for a plane ride and a parachute jump...or watching them...ball games all afternoon...fireworks, startling, lovely, noisy and exciting for the darker hours.

How better could you celebrate our Independence Day than doing or watching all these special American things?

Wasn't it better than tearing around the country risking sudden highway death?

We loved it...thanks, Bob Woodard, for sparking the whole thing...thanks, Community Council, for carrying the ball...thanks each and every parader and encouraging on-looker.

Let's do it again - same place...same time...next year. Our Fourth celebration will Grow with Stow.

COMMISSION SAYS OPEN ROSE BLVD.

Stow Board of Education's letter asking that Rose Blvd. be opened for through traffic beside Lakeview School was recommended for Council approval at Planning Commission's June 29 meeting. This approval would mean school busses for Lakeview and Highland School could use different routes, precluding congestion of children from both schools. It also would ease parking for football games.

The Commission also recommended approval of the Hibbard Allotment on Hudson Dr., but conditionally. They ask that five centrally located acres in the allotment be put aside for recreation; changes in street pattern to limit access to Hudson Dr.; and widening of Hudson Dr. Their choice of recreation area comes from advice of Tri-County Planning Commission, who felt a formerly proposed area not properly located. Commission also wishes a strip adjacent to Industrial Park rezoned for industry.

However, they recommended that Council allow the allotment to be apportioned according to zoning laws in effect when it was first proposed, rather than the revised laws. This would allow smaller lot size within the allotment than under new regulations.

Postmans Dilemma

by Bob Golden

I can remember sauntering into a Post Office sometime ago. I went there to buy some postage stamps, which I did, but while there I eavesdropped on a mob of people that had come to do the same thing.

Their requests for stamps ran the gamut of expression. They hesitated, balked, ordered, demanded, pleaded and in general did everything but simply state "May I have...."

So I decided to keep score. That is, who asked for what and how. The following is the result of an afternoon spent at the Stow Post Office eavesdropping.

There are the people who shuffle slowly up to the postman's window and meekly say, "stamps...about" and that's all. Both customer and postman stare blankly at each other, each wondering what is going on. In the end the postman has to either read this fellow's mind or coax and cajole out of him just how many and what kind of stamps he wants. Fortunately this group is in the smallest minority.

Besides the "about" people, there is another group that can't seem to make-up their minds. They say, "Let's see-it takes..." They fidget, the postman fidgets and finally they agree on just what it is "it takes." In this case too, it helps if the postman is clairvoyant.

There are the people that demand, "I want to get-" and the people that almost plead, "I'd like." In the former the postman must feel guilty about selling the stamps in the first place; in the latter the customer must feel guilty about buying them.

And then there is the postman's dream. The people who walk up to his window and say, "two four cent stamps," or "five

Way Back When

Schools In Early Stow (3rd part)

The Williamson No. 5 District: I know little of its early teachers. My Uncle, Wallace Green, was one of them. When we Green children lived at the Stow Farm (Grandpa Stow's) we had to go to the No. 5 School because the Stow Farm was in that district. After Father built our house we came to No. 3 at the Corners. Little Ireland, as the northwestern corner was called, had No. 7. The school house stood close to the Presbyterian Church. I can't name any of its early teachers.

Some children from Hudson Township attended this Stow School. That is it was a Union District. Perhaps John Hibbard is able to tell some of its early history.

The No. 8 was in the Gilbert District: The school house stood on the north side of Graham Road, a short distance east of Hudson Dr. The Orrin Gilbert home stood for many years on the northwest corner of Graham and Hudson. A filling station is there now (1960). The district embraced all of Hart's Pond and a little of Stow Pond.

No. 2 District: This was in southwest corner of Stow. It was a Union District with Tallmadge. Perhaps the school was in Tallmadge. This corner of Tallmadge was very Welsh and I know nothing of its teachers.

No. 6 District: This was the Darrowstreet District. It was a Union District with Hudson Township. I think most of the school children came from Stow. I can't name any of the early teachers but Frank Green taught that school in the fall of 1889 and the winter and spring terms airmail stamps," or whatever it is they need and that's all there is to it. Fortunately for the postman these people are in the overwhelming majority.

In between the two extremes fall the people that say, "gimme." They rush in, blurt out the number and kind of stamps they want and dash out again. Their abrupt, slurred order is forgiven because everyone knows, even the postman, it is much easier and quicker to say, "gimme," than it is to say, "may I."

Through it all the postman smiles, frowns, is helpful and sometimes puzzled, and everyone leaves the Post Office with what he went for - whether he knows it or not.

of 1890. I collected 1/2 of my pay, $26.662/3 monthly from Stow and 1/2 from Hudson. It was a nice school and the experience I got was very useful. I was just out of high school.

I find no mention of a No. 9 or No. 11 School district.

No. 10, No. 12, No. 14 and No. 15: These were small districts which were organized later than others and taken from them.

I have spoken of a No. 6 district taken from 4 townships. The number came from Streetsboro. The section taken from Stow was the Stewart district. I have said this school was the first in town I believe. Its school house is still there. It is the only one still left in town. It is now the meeting place of one of the churches of Stow.

The school at Darrowstreet must have started very early. I think its first teacher was Mary Cannon. The history of this young woman is interesting. She was born in Mass. in 1788. She had taught in her home town of Aurora and it must have been before 1808 that she taught on the street. Josiah Starr married her December 15, 1808.

These records and some history were given me by Howard Call, Mary's great great grandson. Sometime ago when I was writing about the Starr family. Nuff sed.

Down, But Not Out

"Tuberculosis? I didn't think people got that any more. It's been wiped out, hasn't it?"

That's something we've heard a number of times and we wish it were true, but it isn't. Each year there are a few less deaths than the year before. But....

Right now, 36 million Americans are infected with TB. Based on what is happening today, it is estimated that some 156,000 of these infected people will break down with active tuberculosis sometime during the next four or five years.

These are by no means all long-standing infections. People are picking up the germs today. There are, for instance, more than 2 million young people under 25 among those infected. Nearly 20 percent of all new active cases of TB each year are people under 25. Fortunately, with early detection and modern treatment, the death rate in this age group is comparatively low. But young people do still die of TB every year.

Tuberculosis is very much of a problem today, especially since it is an infectious disease. Any person who is infected with TB can break down with active disease at any time and become a source of new infections far into the future.

No, TB is not wiped out, yet. We hope it will be, in time. Meanwhile it's smart to get a TB check-up every year.

4-H Club News

Recently the 4-H boys of the Neighborhood Conservation Club and girls of the Stow Mixmasters have made three trips to points of interest with advisors and parents.

On June 21, John Frase, Mark Winders and Frank Andrews and their advisor, Joe A. Mitten, went to the Ralph Dickersheet farm in Holmes County for their visit to fields in their project "Exploring the Outdoors." On the way to the farm they visited the Brewster Dairy and saw them making American Cheese.

Between Berlin and Mt. Hope they stopped at the Bowman Harness Shop to see the process of manufacturing and repairing harness. Collars hung from pins in the ceiling and great sides of leather of different kinds were laid out on benches. Newly finished team harness for a six-horse hitch of Shetland ponies hung from racks, elaborately decorated with metal. With practised eye and skillful hands, Mr. Bauman chose a thin strip of soft leather and fashioned it into a leash for John's pet crow at home.

Thursday, June 23, fifteen boys and girls, together with advisors, Mr. and Mrs. Mitten, and Mrs. Arthur Yoder and Mrs. Benton Collingwood, watched the process of baking bread and pastries at the Tasty Bakery in Akron.

Tuesday, June 27, the clubs drove to Medina with their advisors and parents Mrs. Frances Klesa and Charles Call for a tour through the plant of the

ROCKETS, CLASS F LEAGUE LEADERS, LOSE SHORTSTOP SHERLOCK AND FIRST GAME

Doctor's orders kept Rocket's sparkplug shortstop off the playing field in a July 1st game with the Lakers. Sherlock had been bothered by an old knee injury, and the Doctor decreed that there would be no more baseball for him this season.

With Sherlock out of the ball game Rocket morale went to pieces. Their star pitcher Givens was ineffective, and had to be replaced by Dockery in the sixth. They also committed five damaging errors.

The Lakers took advantage of the situation to hand Givens and Co., their first defeat of the season 6-5.

Wilmot was the winning pitcher. He struck out 13, gave up two bases on balls and hit one batter. Crowe went the route behind the plate.

For the Rockets Givens struck out 10 and walked eight, Dockery coming on in relief struck out 4, walked one and hit one batter. Scott caught both pitchers.

None of the Lakers hits were for extra bases. Crowe led the hitters with three singles. Moore and Canavan each got two singles.

For the Rockets Long and Givens each got two doubles and Scott hit one.

"Buzz" Baumgartner hit a homer and a single, Givens contributed a double and a single. Scott belted two triples, Billy Maxwell got two doubles. Maughan collected a double and a single and Dick Sherlock hit two singles to make-up the lions share of the Rocket's impressive barrage of hits.
