Squirt Gun Safari Seeks Stray Bear

A hunt, the likes of which ain't been seen around here for quite a spell, took place at Grants in the Stow-Kent Center recently.

It was a bear hunt, and took the major attention of all Grant employees for a full day before the exhausted prey was captured... alive.

Seems the pet department there harbored a kinkajou - small female friendly-type bear, suitable for use as a pet. But one Friday morning, Mr. Rand, assistant manager, opened the store to find the kinkajou had sprung the door to his cage, molested a few birds in the department, knocking one bird cage through the case window where they all lived, and had disappeared.

Not a sign of the culprit. Everyone kept eyes peeled. The doors were kept closed, though business went on as usual - with female clerks slightly on edge, never knowing when a small brown furry mass might appear... or where.

Denny Kuhlke and Phil Long, male employees, spent the afternoon inspecting stock, peering into likely and unlikely places, wearing leather gloves, just in case. No luck.

Late in the afternoon, Mr. Rand noticed some material in one of the front windows had fallen from place. He entered the window to staple it more firmly to the pole where it hung.

As he stapled toward the top, he looked up, and was momentarily transfixed by a pair of beady eyes.

The kinkajou was resting on the 1 x 1 framework built in the ceiling of the window. And coaxing did not disturb her rest.

Finally Kuhlke and Long were dispatched to the window - locked in so the bear wouldn't (cont. on P. 8)

Adell Durbin, Guise Parks Beckon

Summer - the time for picnics, cookouts, outdoor sports like shuffle board, badminton and baseball and just plain enjoying the great outdoors.

Adell Durbin Park, here in Stow, and Guise Park at Munroe Falls have ample facilities for these summertime activities.

In 1952 Newton Guise gave five acres to Munroe Falls so that a park could be created there. Since then the land has been cleared, outdoor grills have been added and a split rock faced shelter house has been built. The park abounds with trees and shaded trails, and at the rear of the picnic area there is a picturesque stream.

Adell Durbin Park goes back a little farther in time. The ground was given to Stow Township in 1946 by Homer and Lottie Cambell. The name Adell Durbin belongs to one of the original owners of the land. Adell was the wife of Robert Durbin, a resident of Stow all his life, and when they died the land was left to their two daughters Lottie and Jessie. Later Lottie and her husband Homer Campbell bought Jessie's share which they eventually willed to the Township.

Today Adell Durbin offers 35 acres of beautiful scenery along with two baseball diamonds, five shelter houses, a picnic area with 59 tables and 35 outdoor grills and a tennis court that is fast nearing completion.

As an added attraction there is a greenhouse. It is full of flowers, cacti, African violets and lemon and fig trees, each bearing fruit.

Fire wood for the outdoor grills and wood burning stoves is free.

The shelter houses are spacious and well equipped. Homer Cambell Lodge has a fireplace, a gas hot plate, a gas heating stove, a refrigerator and running water. It is perfect for dances and reunions and holds 110 people.

Chestnut lodge is the largest of the shelter houses and has folding chairs and tables. The kitchen is partitioned from the rest of the floor area containing a gas stove, a refrigerator and hot and cold running water. This shelter is used the year around.

Wilson Coon Fills 6 Offices At Once

Wilson Coon came to Stow 30 years ago, and a good thing it was too, for his record in community service is long and rich with achievement.

He is a happy, youthful-looking man with an enormous capacity for work. Currently his community service energies are devoted to being Vice President of Village Council, Chairman of the Village Finance Committee, a member of the Village Public Improvement Committee, congregation president and building drive finance chairman of the First United Presbyterian Church of Stow, Stow's representative to the Family Service

Society of Cuyahoga Falls and Secretary Treasurer of the Stow Businessmen's Club.

This is quite an array of offices for one man to hold at one time, but Coon calmly handles each with efficiency and foresight.

When Coon can arrange the time, he likes to travel. "So far I've been every place east of the Mississippi," he explains. He prefers traveling by car with his family.

His wife Francis teaches in the Stow school system, and his 19 year old daughter Patricia attends Wooster College. "This makes it difficult to get everybody together at the same time so that we can make a trip," he frowns good naturedly.

Coon is also interested in antiques. "I have a small collection I've gathered together during my travels," he points out with pride.

Coon left his native Urbana, Ohio, after graduating from Ohio State University, to work at the Goodyear plant in Akron. He is a cost accountant there and has 32 years service.

He lived for a time in Cuyahoga Falls and then moved to 3474 Edgewood Dr., Stow, where he has lived for 30 years.

Community service isn't a recent interest of Coons. It goes back many years to when he was elected Stow's Justice of the Peace which he was for 12 years.

PTA Rolls 'Em

"It's the first time in Summit County," said Mrs. William Kaufmann, "perhaps the first in the state."

She was referring to plans for parents and teachers to form a bowling league this fall.

Sponsored by Stow PTA clubs, the league will be made up of parents and teachers from all four Stow schools, and it is hoped that teachers' husbands or wives will join in the fun.

Twelve lanes, for 48 bowlers, have been reserved for this PTA mixed league at Sto-Kent Lanes.

Thursday evening from 6:45 to 9:00 every week has been chosen for this season. Interested bowlers (or beginners) may get in on this first PTA bowling league by calling Mrs. Kaufmann at OV 8-8134.

SO WHAT'S NEW?

Waiting, Wishing and Longing
Sailed off in a 'see of due',
Flew away to vacation land,
Their pleasures to pursue.
For fifty weeks they meditate
This joy in sheer contrast.
But no two weeks in all the year,
Contrive to move so fast.

School Board OK's New Building Plans

The Board of Education gave architect W. B. Huff the go ahead after nearly four hours poring over a battery of building and location plans for the new school at Fishcreek Rd. site.

Unable to reach a decision at their July 13 meeting, the Board requested Huff return with variations of the original plan. He came back with specifications featuring two slightly altered building plans in a combination of 12 different positions on the Fishcreek Rd. site.

A building almost identical with that of the present Woodland and Riverview schools was decided on. The structure will be U-shaped. The bottom of the U will parallel Fishcreek Rd., and serve as the main building entrance.

School busses will load and unload in front of the building, and use a half-circle drive that enters and exits from Fishcreek Rd.

Parking facilities and playground areas will be south of the building. When using the playground, children will leave the building from rear exits, keeping them away from bus and parking areas.

There is some speculation Call Rd. might eventually be extended across Fishcreek Rd. and run across the buildings north corner. If this occurs the board is considering another entrance to School property from Call Rd.

Huff agreed to draft an alternate set of plans which included an additional room to be used as a library, or a visual aids room or a teachers meeting room. He will hear bids on both plans.

The Board hopes for construction to begin in October.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor,

Is Stow to be called the city with the backward look? We have a fine charter and numerous civic officials, ordinances and zoning restrictions, but little or no enforcement of the latter.

Drive out to the corner of Lillian and Darrow Roads and view the menace to the safety, health and civic pride of the property owners of that area. The property is clearly zoned for residential use only, but what do you find (Tobacco Road) in the midst of a nice residential area? The land is used by the owner (a leading businessman in Stow) as a dump, gravel yard and general catch-all. The latest addition is a worthless, dirty trailer, which no doubt will be vermin infested soon.

Repeated calls to the city officials have brought no action — not even an appeal to the man's conscience or civic duty. Our city officials are loathe to take any action because they fear a "legal entanglement." Must the citizens of Lillian Road sit idly by and watch their property values go down and down while our officials tiptoe around trying to find a legal step to stand on?

In another month three school buses full of children will travel this road and unless that property is cleaned up the drivers will have to pull half way out on the highway to view approaching traffic. Must we wait till tragedy strikes to do something? If Stow has no ordinances to protect the safety and health of its citizens surely the county does.

The zoning officials can tell you where to build your house or garage and exactly how to wire and plumb it, yet they can do nothing to prevent a property owner from turning his land into a dirty, unsightly slum area. Our neighbor, Cuyahoga Falls, has rules governing such transgressions. Let us find out how it is done and do it!

Way Back When

Part II of History of Stow

by Frank Green

He induced his neighbor in Middletown, William Wetmore, to act as his agent on his land. Mr. Wetmore moved at once to Stow Township and here he lived for the rest of his life. He brought his family with him and a younger brother, Titus. Three married men came with him: Thomas Rice and Gregory Powers, who brought their families; and John Campbell, who did not bring his wife with him but who soon went back to Middletown and got her and brought her here. Besides these families there was a lad of 18, Josiah Starr.

This little colony, the first to come to Stow, arrived in July 1804 and I believe lived the rest of their lives in this vicinity.

— Note in this brief outline of Stow's history I shall tell little of the personal lives of any of its residents. I have written biographies of all those mentioned and of many more of the early settlers —

Judge Wetmore as he was always called: He was a Justice of the Peace during much of his life in Stow, a thoughtful, orderly man. One of the first things that he did was to have the town surveyed into sections of ½ mile squares. In this survey which was done by Joseph Darrow.... who had come to Hudson a short time before.... enough roads were laid out to give convenient access to all parts of the town. Part of the bargain between Mr. Stow and Mr. Wetmore was that Wetmore was to buy 1,000 acres of land.

He could pick it out in sections anywhere. The price was to be $1.25 an acre. Stow Township became legally a part of Portage when that county was laid out in 1808 but there was no election of township officers in Stow until January 15, 1811. The election was held at the home of Stephen Butler, who owned Section 45. The Town Hall and Stow High School now stand on this site. However in 1809 which was the year that Deacon Butler came here he must have been forced to clear a place to build his log cabin. I am sure it stood not far from the place that Herman Theis' home now stands. I think that Henry Butler built that house before 1830.

These men, chosen at that time, were Stow Township's first officers: Clerk, Stephen Butler; Trustees, Titus Wetmore, Josiah Starr; and Christopher Starr; Overseers of the Poor, George Darrow and Thomas Rice; Fence Viewers, Thomas Henning and Constant Rogers; Constables, Charles Powers and Thomas Gaylord; and Treasurer, Titus Wetmore.

On the same day and at the same place a special election was held.... by order of the County Commissioners... for 2 Justices of the Peace. The 2 elected were Joseph Darrow and Ezra Wyatt. Again February 10, 1814, William Wetmore and Stephen Butler were elected Justices.

Socials and Personals

by Kathy Martin

I was very pleased to receive a letter at the Stow Press office from Stow High School's band director, J. Rex Mitchell. I had asked for the "facts" and reasons for the absence of our band in the July Fourth parade in my column of July 14. With Mr. Mitchell's permission, we'll print part of the letter and share the facts with our readers.

"You have asked for the 'facts'. I will itemize several reasons quoting a section of a letter I mailed to Chief Robert Woodard dated June 7, 1960.

Item I. I will be out of the state the entire weekend preceeding July 4th, and will not return to Stow until the week of the 11th. As you might recall, I had discussed this possibility with you in early May.

Item II. I plan to have all of the drums and saxophones repaired this summer. These instruments must be sent into repair immediately, to guarantee their return by next September. I could not operate a marching band without these instruments.

Item III. The band uniforms will be in storage for the summer, as limited space at the High School will not be sufficient for storage.

Item IV. I could not take part, for professional reasons I cannot discuss at this time.

For the present there is no summer music program in the Stow Schools. Without this program it is extremely difficult to remain in contact with 70 students and plan for rehearsals."

Thanks to Mr. Mitchell for clarifying the issue for all of us.

Family reunions are the thing for summertime, judging by three local families' activities recently.

A reunion picnic was held Sunday, July 17, at Waterworks Park by Mrs. J. R. Forbes, formerly of Stow, when her daughter, Catherine, now Mrs. Bernard Heuser, with her husband and children, were here on vacation from Phoenix, Arizona. Two other daughters, Mrs. Raymond Smith and Mrs. L. O. Adams of Silver Lake, also entertained the Heuser family.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rhinehart, (she's the former Martha Lutz) of 1987 King Dr., held a family gathering Sunday, July 24. Catching up with each other's news were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willis B. Lutz, of Kent; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Scholtz, Massillon; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lutz of North Baltimore, Md.; Air Force officer and Mrs. Glenn Lutz en route from Chateaufort, France, to a new station at Salt Lake City; Barton Lutz of New York City, en route to San Francisco for a week's vacation. Bart, on his return from San Fran, will spend a week in Kent and Stow, visiting family and friends. This was the Lutz's first family reunion since 1957.

A family picnic was held Tuesday, July 19, at Adell Durbin Park in honor of Mrs. Florence Nutt (formerly Mrs. Florence Davies of Stow) who visited last week with Mrs. Collingwood, Stow. Also attending the picnic was Mrs. Blanche Kaminski of Detroit.

HIGH WAYS

How much do you know?

Penny Powell's family has a new little doggie in its midst. It's a black poodle called Lady Shadow.... Norma Lutz and her family have gone on vacation to Parkersburg, West Virginia for a week. They're attending a family reunion.... Dawne Butler and Mary Ann Flaherty were counselors at 4-H camp last week. What good experience and fun.... Sue Simms has found a real good job in a Hardware and Supply office in Akron.... Carol and Martie Brandon are having plenty of company right now. Staying with the Brandon family last week for a while were Gary Miller, Pat Yukers, Sandy and Billy Glydwell, cousins of Carol and Martie.

Bernie Czartowski is far out West by now. Bernie graduated this Spring from Stow and is going to Montana College in the fall. He decided to go early and see some of our great nation. Can't you just see him rumbling along a country road in his little jeep with the radio full blast? To say a final goodbye (till Christmas when Bernie'll be home again) Carol Brandon had lots of kids come to her house for a surprise good-bye party. Everyone ate and ate and ate. It was an A-1 party!

Speaking of parties.... The combined Youth Groups of the Community, Lutheran, and Presbyterian Churches in Stow had a real cool ice cream-making party last Friday night. It was interesting to see how many people appeared after the ice cream was made (just in time to eat it though). There were about 23 high school kids attending and you should've seen the ice cream fly! Their next project is a used clothing drive for Chilean Relief starting August 7. If you have any used clothes you can't use why don't you contact Tim Rogers, Nancy Rearick or Delores Burdett?

Percolatin with Peg

It's hard to have an open mind. (A vacant one is much easier.) I've always assumed that drivers who cling to the right curb were frightened souls, or shy, or owners of cars so ancient they couldn't compete with stronger horse power.

I've assumed middle lane drivers were unhurried, good natured, carefree - regular "middle-of-the-roads". Left-laners were rushers, show-offs, or so far-sighted their eyes hurt when looking at the rear of another car.

During a recent trip to Cleveland when I tried to put my amateur psychology to the test, all my theories were blasted. Trying all three lanes in conscientious succession, I came to the following conclusions.

Middle lane drivers are there because they're afraid they'll get stuck behind a parked car in the right lane, but they're planning to turn right anyway. Or left.

Left-lane drivers are there because they want to pass everyone else before they turn right. (They hardly ever turn left.)

I was so upset by all this way out turning that when I got stopped in a left turn spot on Route 8 on my way home, and the man behind me honked because he wanted to turn and I didn't, I got chicken and turned. Left. "I'll just pick up 91 when I get to it, and go straight to Stow," I rationalized.

The children said "Where are we going?" and "We'll get lost," but I acted very knowing and said we'd go right by Leisure-Timethis way.

Only 91 never came up. It got dark. The kids got restless. I kept saying "It's right over this hill," but it never was.

How it happened I'm not sure, but we went through Bentleyville, which I didn't know was there, and then to Chagrin Falls, from which I've driven home many times. But not this time. 91 kept getting farther and farther off, but I KNEW we had to cross it somewhere.

When we hit Aurora Inn, I gave up. One of the children said "Are we lost?" and another said "Don't you trust your own mother!"

So without further ado, I turned right, managed to get through Streetsboro and hit 303, turned right again and lo and behold, there was 91 just down the road a piece.

We drove past Leisure Time according to my word, arriving home only an hour and a half later than we should have. From now on, if you get behind me and want to turn left, you'll just have to wait for the next light. According to my survey, you should have been in another lane anyway!

ARCTIC ALASKAN TOUR

by Kathy Martin

If you've ever complained that there aren't enough hours in a day, you should travel to Alaska as Mrs. Augusta Long, 3575 Williamson Rd., did, and see the sun rise at 3 a.m. (Some places have 24 hours of daylight.)

Dusty roads, beautiful scenes, wild animals, mountain flowers, ice floats on the Arctic - this is summertime in Alaska as this fifth grade teacher at Twinsburg discovered during her month tour of our 49th state.

The trip started June 25 when she left Stow, accompanied by her friend, Kent State professor Jeanette Littlejohn. They flew to Vancouver, B.C., where they traveled the inside water passage by boat to Alaska's capitol, Juneau. They then flew to Skagway where they boarded the narrow gauge White Pass Railway which follows the old Gold Rush trail to White Horse, Canada.

They rode the bus to Fairbanks, another plane to Point Barrow to visit an Eskimo Village. They entrained for McKinley National Park, toured and sight-saw all the way to Anchorage, which may become the new capitol after the fall election.

More flying to Seattle, Wash., then to Portland, Oregon, for a visit with family friends, and a landing back home on July 18.

Mrs. Long found Alaskan people friendly and happy about their statehood. Most everyone seems to work for the government though they saw farming country in Anchorage.

A rough but adventurous sojourn, the tour is recommended by Mrs. Long for anyone who enjoys "roughing it."

PICK A PEACH

From mid-July through September peaches are in the spotlight at the fruit counter. While only a few local grown peaches are available now, in the next couple of weeks you will find more. Meanwhile, peaches shipped from the East Coast and from California are on the counter. Quality is excellent.

HOW MANY TO BUY

One pound of fresh peaches will yield about four servings of sliced peaches. For pie, you'll want to plan on using two pounds of fresh peaches for either an 8- or 9-inch pie. For canning or freezing, a bushel (48 pounds) of fresh peaches will yield 16 to 24 quarts. In smaller quantities, you can expect to get one quart of the processed product from two to three pounds of the fresh.

Wilson Bats 385

Dick Wilson, veteran Stow Leaguer, looks appreciatively at the bat he used to attain his phenomenal 385 season average.

Superior Mold ended Class F play with a fine 304 team batting average, and an average of 8.4 runs per game.

Dick Wilson's spectacular 385 was the team high. Other players in the charmed 300 club were Jerry Jonke with 362, Larry Wilhite with 353 and Ted Cook with 333.

Superior Mold had a 9-3 record for the season.

Stow Leaguers Play Dads

A family get-together of the Superior Mold team will be held at Superior Mold Field Sunday, July 31, starting at 3 p.m. Dads of the team players will play their sons in a baseball game, and a picnic supper will wind up the season.

CHICKEN BARBECUE IN FULL SWING

Broilers will be food budget this month. Since the middle of May placement of broiler chicks each week has been from 10 to 15 percent above the same weeks last year. This larger-than-normal supply of broilers becomes ready for market nine weeks after placement. This means broilers will be real penny savers this month.

Stow Youths Caddy PGA Pros

Many Stow teenage golfing fans got a chance to watch the pros in action when they caddied for them in last week's PGA tournament at Akron.

Among these area caddies was Kurt Koski, 17, of 1824 Gorge Park Blvd.

Kurt, Stow High's golf captain, carried Robert Grant's clubs until Grant was eliminated after two days of competition.

Kip Koski, Kurt's brother, caddied during the practice rounds, but had to withdraw after he broke a toe during Stow High's football practice.

Other caddies from Stow were Ray Rejowski, Bud Weeks, George Porosky, Monie Carpenter, Ralph Richardson, Bill Nighman and Doug Jones.

These boys get to play the Firestone Country Club course where the tourney was held sometime this week.

4-H STYLE REVUE

by Sue Cook

The theme for this year's 4-H style revue is "The Soaring '60's." The revue is going to be bigger and better than the ones in the years past. It will give the girls a chance to model the clothes they made during the 4-H year.

The revue will be held Thursday, August 11, at 7 p.m. The place is the Summit County Junior Fairgrounds on East Howe Rd. in Tallmadge.

The girls who are on the committee from Stow are: Ruth Ann Merrell, Assistance Directors, and Sue Cook, Public Relations Personnel. They are only two of many who are helping to make this year's style revue bigger and better than ever before. Mr. Robert Benson and Mrs. Ann Welser are the co-directors.

We hope to see you all at the 4-H Style Revue on August 11. So Come!

A water pistol was brought in and shot at the bear, but she didn't seem to notice.

Finally, Manager Rudy Sprenger entered the scene. He knocked some 1 x 1's out from under the retreating animal, coaxed and pled with her until he finally got a grip on her tail, pulled her down into Kuhlke's arms, and the chase was over.

"We don't carry kinkajou bears in stock any more," said Rand later. "That one was purchased as a pet by one of our employees, who keeps her on a leash."

Last Week for your fishing story to win a prize!
Send it to me by Saturday, July 30 - True or false!

Open Letter to Stow Press and readers:

Dear Peg,

One more week left to our wonderful Canada vacation. The weather is just right for fishing and the fish are biting on the orange U-20 and the night crawler harness I bought at Bob Ward's JAMES HARDWARE Store in the Stow-Kent Plaza.

Since I am trusting you will call SPAGHT-COVELLA-BECKLEY, INC., for any insurance information you desire here is a "FISH STORY" for you from another year (an honest one too.)

You have just bought a new lure before going fishing and then when you are out in the boat for the first time and cast with a nice, healthy "flying" cast it lands about ten feet up in a tree. Unless you wish to feel very disgruntled about the whole thing and be minus the new lure and the opportunity to catch the largest fish on it, there is only one thing left to do and that is to climb the tree and rescue the elusive lure. Now, after climbing the tree and reaching for a hunting knife on your belt, you discover you left it back on the table when cleaning fish, and all that is available is a pocket knife. Did you ever try cutting a 2" thick limb with a pocket knife? I managed after about a solid half hour of fussing, sawing, haggling, and hanging on, to get it back. After all the struggle I don't remember whether I caught a big fish with it or not, but it helped to make that year a little more exciting. And may it never happen to me again!

See you next week,
Dorothy Fagle
